To

The Deputy Commissioners of Districts,

Sub-division Officer, French Rocks, and Assistant Superintendent of Railway Police.

The Inspector General has noticed that Inquest reports are not at present prepared in a uniform manner, and various errors and omissions are generally found in them. This causes great inconvenience in scrutinizing the proceedings and it is often difficult to find out whether serious omissions are due to carelessness on the part of inquest officers or to dishonest suppression of observed facts. In order, therefore, to prevent this inconvenience and to secure uniformity of practice. the enclosed printed form of an Inquest report is forwarded for adoption in future. As it contains all the necessary points which have generally to be elicited at an ordinary inquest, it is hoped that it will be useful to Police officers holding inquests; as well as to superior officers of Police and Magistrates who have to scrutinize the inquest proceedings.

2. Printed instructions setting out the points on which full information should be given according to the nature of each case in the Inquest report (or Mahazar), in cases of deaths under suspicious circumstances, are also forwarded. All officers of Police empowered to hold inquests should study them carefully and keep a copy with them for their guidance at the time of holding inquests.

3. Care should be taken to make the Inquest proceedings as succinct as possible and to avoid the introduction of irrelevant matter.

POINTS TO BE NOTED DURING INQUESTS.

Inquest Officers should noted the following points about which the fullest information should be given according to the nature of each case in the inquest paper or Mahazar, in cases of deaths under suspicious circumstances:-

(1) When the body was first found, was it warm or cold? was it rigid or not?

(2) Had decomposition set in?

(3) What was the exact time of death?

(4) When, where, and with whom was the deceased last seen alive?

(5) What was the exact attitude and position of the body when found?

(6) Note the position of all surrounding articles, such as bottles, papers, weapons, or spilled liquids. These articles should be collected and preserved.

(7) Note the exact position and size of any marks of blood on the body or in the vicinity. State whether the blood was dry or liquid.

(8) Is bleeding copious?

(9) Is it venous and of a thin fluid character?

(10) Where there is any coagulation in the blood?

(11) Did the deceased show any special symptoms? If so, when were they first noticed, and how long did they continue?

(12) How long after partaking of any meal, food, drink, or medicine, did the symptoms occur?

(13) Did they intermit, did they continue without mitigation until death?

(14) Secure any portion of the food or medicine which may be suspected to contain poison.

(15) Secure all matter vomited or evacuated.

Note.- When securing food or vomited matter, be most careful to put each matter separately in a clean pot or vessel: do not take any old pot, or piece of pot that may be offered: but insist upon being supplied with a new and clean earthen vessel, which should at once be securely fastened and carefully guarded until it is given into the hands of the Medical Officer.

(16) Note the external appearance of the body and all marks of violence as well as their situation, nature, extent and direction.

Note.- Whether the edges of wounds are loose or close.

(17) Note any other suspicious circumstances, and all statements of suspected parties.

(18) Is the position of the body that which a suicide could have assumed?

(19) Is the distance of the weapon from the body such as to render it improbable that it could have been placed there by the deceased? Note distance.

(20) If a weapon is found in the hand of the deceased, such as a knife or a pistol, it should be noted whether the weapon is grasped firmly or loosely.

(21) In a case of hanging or strangulation, the following points should be carefully inquired into and noted:-

(a) Was the room locked on the inside without other possible means of escape?

(b) Were any fire-arms or other weapons or marks of blood, or signs of struggling, noticed about the room?

(22) Is the dress of the deceased torn, or the hair disarranged? Does the dress etc. indicate any interference with the body after death?

Note the position of the body and the character of the dress worn.

(23) If the ligature is still round the neck, carefully note (or better still sketch) its exact position, the number, the character, and the method of tying the knot or knots (that is, whether the tying was the work of a right or left-handed person); and the exact position of the knots. Remove the cord by cutting, so as to leave the knots intact. If the ligature has been removed, ask for it.

(24) Preserve and retain the ligature for evidence. It may be needful to compare it with some material either in the possession of an accused person, or belonging to the deceased; or its possession may be traced to some one else.

(25) Note the material of which the ligature is composed.

Do the ends of the ligature appear (if a rope) to have been freshly cut?

Compare the ligature with the impression on the neck.

Note whether there is any brown line on the ligature, such as might result from perspiration.

(26) Are there any marks of blood, or of a hair or other matters, adherent to the ligature?

Are there any marks of violence on the deceased other than those directly caused by the hanging or strangling?

(27) By What instrument were these marks (if present) likely to have been inflicted?

Are they sufficient in themselves to account for death; or if not sufficient, are they of such a character that they would induce great weakness from loss of blood?

Were they probably accidental, suicidal, or homicidal (i.e., likely to be caused in a struggle)?

(28) Note--

Face.-Pale? Swollen? Placid?

Mouth and nostrils.-Foam?

Tongue.-Position? Color? Whether injured or not?

Eyes.-Prominent?

Pupils.-Dilated?

(29) Character of marks.-Presence of a groove?

Whether it be complete or not? Color of the borders of the groove, and of the parts beyond? Marks of fingers, etc.

Direction of the marks.-Whether oblique or not? Note the apparent position of the knots. State of the integuments in the furrow.

Any scratches, abrasions, or bruises?

(30) Hands.-Bloody? Clenched? Anything in the hands? Carefully preserve any hair, etc., that may be found grasped or attached.

Sexual organs.-In the male, note if there be spermatic fluid in the urethra.
